LEE-DREW NUPTIALS AT MILTON MONDAY

Miss Jennie Lee Was Married to Rev. Harris E. Drew of Jefferson on New Year's Day.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, Jan. 2.—On Monday afternoon, Jan. 1, at Milton, Wis., Miss Jennie Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lee, was wedded to Rev. Harris E. Drew of Jefferson, Wis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Spillman, pastor of the Lutheran church at Jefferson. The bride was accompanied by her sister, Miss Ruth Lee. The party took its place before the officiating clergyman, Rev. J. A. Drew, father of the groom, and the solemn words were said which made them husband and wife. Rev. J. C. Spillman, superintendent of the Janesville district, assisted in the ceremony. The decorations of the room, also of the tables, were in holiday. A delicious wedding supper was served in three courses, and soon thereafter the newly wedded pair escaped those who would have given them a lively farewell, and were not at last accounts located.

The groom is a graduate of Lawrence college, Appleton, and is pastor of the M. L. church at Jefferson, while the bride is one of Milton's most popular young ladies. They go to their new home accompanied by the earnest good wishes and congratulations of a host of friends.

INCREASED DEMAND FOR PREMIUM LISTS

Indications for a Banner Exhibition of Poultry at Annual Show Are Most Promising.

Officers and directors of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association are pleased with the present indications which point to the success of their fourth annual exhibition which will be held in the West Side Rink, January 16th to 20th. The demand for the premium lists, which have been issued only a few days ago, has been unprecedented and nearly the entire stock of copies have been distributed or spoken for by dealers in the middle west who will be attracted here for the show.

The array of premiums, cash and merchandise, silver cups, and special awards, is larger and better than ever before. Fifteen beautiful silver cups are offered by various business firms in the city as special prizes, and six special premiums will be awarded.

The following cups, all of which may be seen in the windows of Hall and Sayles' jewelry store, are offered:

For the highest scoring pen of barred Plymouth Rocks, cup donated by Lewis Knitting Company.

For the highest scoring pen of Plymouth Rocks, other than barred, cup donated by F. H. Green and Son.

For the highest scoring pen of White Wyandottes, cup donated by Golden Eagle Clothing Company.

For the highest scoring pen of Wyandottes, other than White, cup donated by G. W. Grant and Company, "Pleasant."

For the highest scoring pen of Single Comb Rhode Island Reds, cup donated by Janesville Woolen Mills.

For the highest scoring pen of Rose Comb Rhode Island Reds, cup donated by Rock County Bank.

For the highest scoring pen of Leghorns, other than Brown, cup donated by Rock River Cotton Company.

For the highest scoring pen of Orpingtons, cups donated by Gazette Printing Company.

For the highest scoring pen of Minorcas, cup donated by Olin and Olson.

For the highest scoring pen of Polish, cup donated by Hall and Sayles.

For the highest scoring pen of Langshans, cup donated by Edward Amerphel.

For the best pen of Bantams cup donated by the directors.

Big Guessing Contest.
A special and novel attraction at the show will be the feather guessing contest. A glass jar filled with feathers will be placed in a conspicuous place and persons attending the show will be entitled to a guess as to the number of feathers in the jar. The first prize for the one coming the nearest to the actual number is $5.00 and the second prize is $2.50.

Another attraction will be the exhibit of corn grown by the high school students from seed of Silver King Corn No. 7, distributed by the agricultural department of the Janesville high school. Each student will show the ten best ears from his crop, and the corn will be judged by Prof. L. F. Gruber, of Madison, who will also give a lecture on corn growing "Thursday afternoon, Jan. 18th, at 3:15. The prizes offered in the corn growing contest are: First one walking plow, Janesville Machine Co. Second, three dollars. Third, two dollars. Fourth, one dollar.

Several corrections and additions have been made to the premium list. On page 26 it should read that a cup is offered for the best pen of Bantams instead of for Polish. On page 27 S. P. Plymouth Rocks should read Partridge Plymouth Rocks. Prizes for this class are as follows:

Best pair old birds, Kodak, Smith Drug Company.
Highest scoring cockerel, one set of black Orpington eggs, value $3.00.
Highest scoring pullet, crystal sugar and cream set.

On page 17 the name of Hall and Sayles is omitted.

ATTENDS BIG SKI JUMP; LOSES PURSE AND MONEY

Wallace Briggs, Wall Street Blacksmith, Minus Sum of One Hundred and Twenty Dollars.

Wallace Briggs, the Wall street blacksmith, is short about one hundred and twenty dollars, stolen or lost while at the Stoughton ski tournament yesterday, or while on the train returning to this city last evening.

He carried the money in a small purse which was stowed away in a rear trousers pocket, and except while eating dinner in a church dining room, did not have his coat off at any time during the day. Mr. Briggs thinks it hardly possible that the money was stolen, but a number of pickpockets are said to have been at work in the crowd at Stoughton and it is quite likely that one of them was nimble enough to do the trick. Mr. Briggs has informed the police of his loss.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION AND ALL OTHER STOMACH MISERY GOES

Take a Little Diapasepin now and your Stomach will feel fine five minutes later.

If your meals don't sit comfortably, or if you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which kills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if it is difficult in breathing after eating; eructations of sour, undigested food and acid; heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your stomach of poisonous, excessive acid and unassimilated food, which cures your entire system—restores with digestion, and cures so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Bloating, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your cure is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapasepin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapasepin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within ten minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.

JANESVILLE TEAMS PLAYED YESTERDAY.

Waterloo Defeated The Travelling Maroons and the Janesville B Juniors Won From Evansville.

Two basket ball games were played yesterday by Janesville teams, one at Evansville by the Y. M. C. A. B Juniors and the other by the Travelling Maroons at Waterloo. The former however were able to defeat their opponents by a score of 49 to 18 while the latter gave up the game a score of 34 to 25 in Waterloo's favor.

Evansville does not seem to be able to get a team which can defeat a Janesville bunch and last night's game added another to this year's list making the second that the Juniors have won from them. Captain Maroons played a good game for Janesville and the rest of the team were there to back him up. Good work on basket throwing and team work on the part of the local lads was too much for Evansville.

Everything was against the Maroons at Waterloo. The main trouble was the fact that they were forced to play on a slippery dance floor and were unable to get in the good team work they were used to. The game was close all through despite the handicap and the Janesville boys showed their opponents that they could fight hard against big odds. The lineup and scores were as follows:

Wilson R. P.
Padden R. P.
Hemming R. G.
Sponner R. G.
Brown L. G.

Field goals, Padden, 4; Wilson, 3; Sponner, 3. Free Throws, Padden, 5; Wilson, 3.

The Turgenev Blues of Chicago, will play the Lakota Cardinals at the rink and an exciting game is expected by the Janesville fans, who witnessed last year's contests between these two teams.

JAK OPENEN

Wire Loop Encircles Top and Grips It Very Tightly.

Many a time the housewife of the modern era has been vexed by the fact that a jar of jelly or preserves, the top of which resists all efforts at removal. Then it is saved for the man of the house and sometimes he falls down on it and sometimes he falls down on it and sometimes he falls down on it.

A New York man has invented a device for this emergency with which it is claimed that the baby can open the stubborn jar. The difficulty is in getting a firm grip on the jar top, a highly important detail. It consists of a piece of heavy wire, wound into a loop.

JANESVILLE PEOPLE
AT SKI TOURNAMENT

Barney Reilly Broke Stoughton Record With 137 Feet Jump And Nearly Smashed American Record.

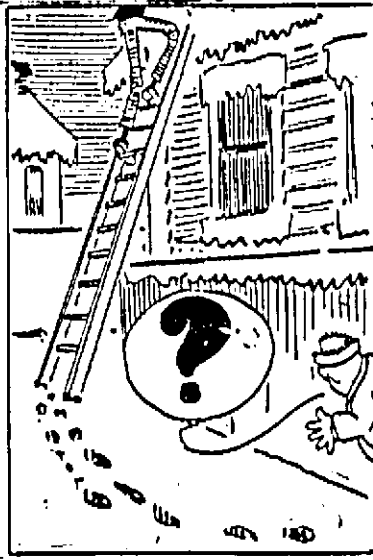

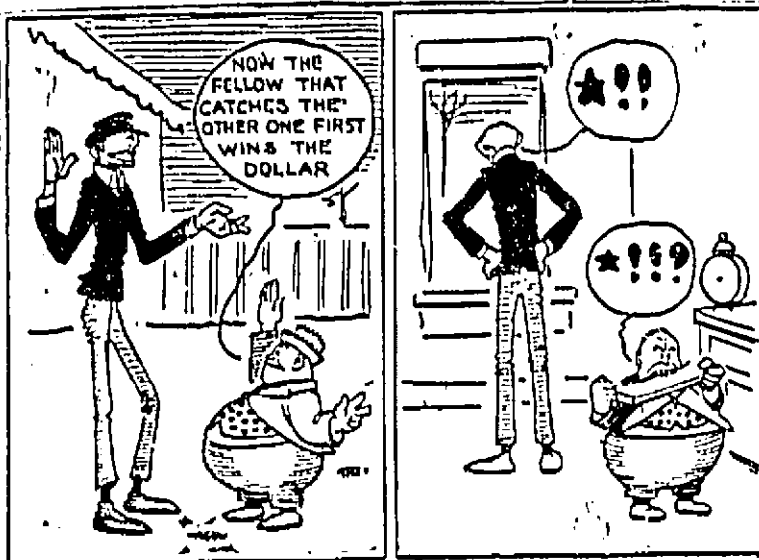

About two thousand people witnessed the ski jumping at Stoughton yesterday among whom were many Janesville people and a large part of the crowd were slightly disappointed in the outcome of the contest. Owing to the fact that snow was too hard and slippery the contestants were unable to stand up after they had made their jump and lost many points by this. Very few times did the contestants keep their feet after a long jump and this did much to spoil the match as far as the spectators were concerned. Also the Chicago entrants who are among the best in the country did not make an appearance and only eleven men entered the tournament.

Many noted skiers did show up however and Barney Reilly, for three years world's amateur champion, made his debut into professional circles by breaking the Stoughton record by 2 feet with a jump of 137 feet. He would have won the longest standing jump contest but he fell in landing, and a slight defect in the scaffold alone prevented him from breaking the American distance record. Holder Aspaas of Duluth and recently from Norway, made an excellent showing despite the fact that he had never jumped in the United States before yesterday afternoon. Jacob Gjestad of Stoughton, won the professional honors making 127 and 125 feet and 258 points.

Dozens of people who brought cameras with them were disappointed yesterday as Wisconsin Moving Picture Co., of this city had exclusive rights for all pictures and barred other machines from the grounds. Motion pictures of all the jumpers were taken from the start until they ended their slides and this film will be shown in Janesville sometime next week.

cast of Vere do Vere. They voted themselves three new committees of inquiry last week, involving the money trust, which certainly ought to exist if it does not; the alleged shipping combination, with which they have no concern, as it is principally owned abroad, and congress possesses not the slightest constitutional right to interfere with it; and the unfortunate Harvester Trust, which has committed the grave crime of making profits in a business which provided a large amount of employment where no such employment existed before.

"There are three stages in the attitude of the people of the United States towards this sort of thing. When a campaign of public morality starts, they are excited and enthusiastic. Later they take on a certain degree of tempered earnestness. Then they become, successively, bored, irritated and furiously angry, and apt to make it warm for such philanthropists as have failed to gauge the popular temper. This is no place to define exactly the stage at which public opinion has arrived, but there is a lively chance that we may see the last stage of the cycle in 1912."

Anything to bust Taft, will be the slogan of the progressive organized movement in Ohio. The League refused to endorse La Follette, by a decided majority, but denounced the president in the following resolution: "We are opposed to the re-nomination of President Taft. We hereby declare it to be the determined purpose of the Ohio Progressive Republican League to work in harmony and union to nominate a progressive republican for president, recognizing as fellow progressives all who hold the principles for which we stand, whether they be for the presidential nomination of Robert M. La Follette or Theodore Roosevelt, or any other progressive republican."

"We assert the essential unity of the progressive movement throughout the entire state and nation. We favor the election of delegates who will favor the nomination of a candidate who will fully represent the progressive principle."

La Follette made a strong bid for the labor vote of the country, in his Cincinnati speech, when he advocated that organized labor should not be under the provisions of the Sherman law. He also favored woman's suffrage, as a vote-catcher. Whatever may be said against the Wisconsin senator, he has lost none of his arts as a politician.

The peace dinner in New York, last Saturday night, was something of a disappointment. The ambassadors from Washington failed to show up, and the man from Oyster Bay declined to attend. It was a love feast with all the discordant elements left out, but its influence on international peace will be "nil."

Superintendent Cary is out with another letter on the university as a political factor, which will be found in another column, and is well worth reading. Mr. Cary knows what he is talking about. The next state campaign should take the university as an issue, for it embodies extravagance and recklessness, and covers a multitude of sins, under the guise of reform.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

THE MESSAGE.
Oh, Mr. Taft, we hear that you are ready to sit down and write
Your message to Congress, as all presidents do.
And we would say
We have upon our minds
A lot of things on which we'd like
To make good advice from you.
The message is supposed to tell how this old nation should be run.
And how the proletariat should manage their affairs.
There are some mooted problems we would suggest you have a go at.

To write, and so we load on you the burden of our cares.
Pray tell us in your message how we're going to buy twelve tons of coal
And clothes for wife and seven kids,
Pay for gas and rent,
And reach an independence which should be each thoughtful husband's goal.
When meat and groceries each week consume our last red cent,
How can we start a bank account?
Where do we come to get a chance to follow Rockefeller's path and harbor in the douch,
Or how have drawn our salary
and have fortnight in advance?
It's one thing, Mr. President, that would like to know.

When we look our wife's new car and not use language that's any?
Can we cross the street and our head
Such automobile driving is also insane,
and chose to be quick or all preserve our health
one, insidious microbe
If we eat or even touch best some simple way in may prolong our lives?
It's one thing, Mr. President, that would like to know.

MEDICINE HAT.

It is a small dot on the government map.
This town we speak of, you know it mayhap.
It's gained a large portion of world-wide renown.
For being a rather cantankerous town.
And it has pulled down quite a large bunch of fumes
By working an ungrateful sort of a kama.
There's no doubt about it when we tell you that
They make all the blizzards at Medicine Hat.

They raise nothing else in that far distant clime
But weather, and they're raising that all of the time.
A blizzard that comes from that direction,
Blizzards by Jingo,
Is no imitation, but is the real thing.
Their blizzards have all of the little chills and the shakes,
And no one can charge them with sending out fakes.
Nobody's saw a blizzard fall flat
When it was sent out from old Medicine Hat.

The bureau usually can't tell whether it will or whether it won't.

It is said that some of the under cooks were strongly prejudiced against up-setting the traditions of their craft by cooking in paper bags, even for once, and were surprised and delighted at the results obtained.—New York Sun.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

TO A YOUNG MAN.

It goes without saying that you wish to succeed in whatever business you are engaged.

Well—
Do you know you can easily put yourself in the way of your success, become your own competitor, be your own enemy?

How is that?
Why, you become your own enemy when you indulge the habits that prevent your being at your best.

Now—
Your largest capital is yourself—a sound mind in a sound body. Your brain, nerves, muscles, blood—these are the means by which you get things done. So that whatever clouds your brain, shatters your nerves, weakens your muscles, vitiates your blood, depletes by so much your volume of working capital.

You put yourself against you.
Whenever you give way to any sort of dissipation, any overindulgence that puts you to bed late and gets you up in the morning with a bad head or jangled nerves, you lessen by that much your chances.

The joker says:
"If whiskey interferes with your business, give up your business."

Aye! In very truth, if whiskey or gambling or any other thing interferes with your business give up your business and make the whiskey drinking, the gambling or what not your main business, because it is only a question of time when you must cut out one or the other.

Let your natural competitor in business—the other fellow—do the dissipating if he chooses.

As for you, stick fast to your business in business hours. Outside of business hours get plenty of sleep, good air and regular meals.

Let your competitor waste his time and health if he wills to do so. As for you—

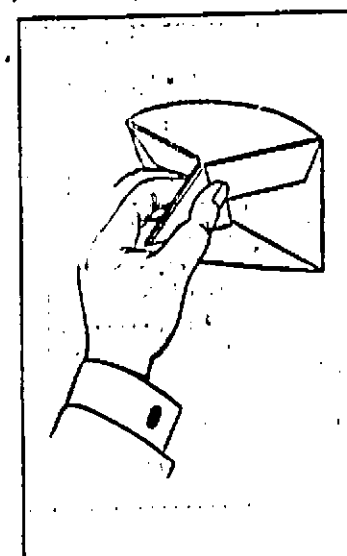

You cannot afford it.
If you care more for being successful, independent, a man among men, than you do for your appetite, do not be your own rival in business. Do not be your own hindrance.

Nobody but you can defeat you. Why fight against yourself?

PAPER DRINKING CUP

Has Handle by Which It Can Be Easily Manipulated.

In the present crusade for sanitation which is driving state legislatures to wipe out the public drinking-cup necessity has witnessed several inventions of paper drinking cups, and one of these is credited to a New York woman. The feature of the article shown here is that it has a handle, and can be used with more satisfaction than one not so equipped. Take a square piece of paper and fold it diagonally upon itself. Lay it in front of you with the point of the triangle uppermost and turn the other ends in until they are completely opposite the other. Then bend each of these ends back upon itself and hold them together at right angles with the body of the receptacle. Turn down the two points which are sticking up; half you have a perfectly straight cup across the top, and there you are provided with a paper cup that is quite watertight and has a handle, too.

Cobley, a shoemaker, whose death at the age of ninety has occurred at Surbiton, Lincolnshire, England, was sent out into the world at the age of ten, his mother presented him with a silk hat, and told him to wear it always. He wore the hat indoors and out of doors until the day of his death.

A Frightful Occurrence.

Our Debt to the Public:

We believe that stores like this owe something to the public beyond the mere gathering and selling of merchandise. In the old days the shopper had to have a good bit of Yankee shrewdness, had to know whether things were good or clever shams—or else she paid the penalty of buying trash. We believe that The Big Store of today has no business selling poor goods, no matter whether the buyer has discerning judgment or not. We believe it is the duty of a store to make sure its goods are worthy before they reach its counters. We have carried this principle to the extreme, perhaps. Few stores are as careful that "wool" shall mean all wool, that clothing shall be made as well inside where it doesn't show, as it is outside where it does show. These things are carried to the extreme: here, Makers still tell us that we are foolishly careful; that our care is useless; that the public doesn't appreciate the difference between the best and the "almost as good;" that we might just as well take the little extra profit that comes from selling the second grade. But we know that our care is appreciated. We know that people everywhere hereabouts have learned that buying here is safe; that they can depend on whatever comes from The Big Store; that The Big Store's stars are means something.

CARY DEALS BLOW TO STATE COMMISSIONS

STATE SUPERINTENDENT, IN LETTER ISSUED TODAY, ATTACKS "GOVERNMENT BY EXPERTS."

UNIVERSITY AGAIN HIT

Says Institution is Not "Master of the State," and That People Will Never Consent to be Ruled

In the second letter of a series sent out by State Superintendent, C. P. Cary, and which was marked for release to newspapers not earlier than January second, the "government of the state by experts" is severely criticized and the evils of commissions are set forth in no uncertain terms. The letter is as follows:

Madison, Wis., Jan. 2, 1912. To Teachers and the General Public: We are in the midst of confusion of political tongues. Those who believe thoroughly in democracy say the people should rule. The "experts" seem to be discarding, however, that only experts are capable of making the laws and of administering the affairs of modern states. The public-spirited politician on the stump is Jeffersonian, he has confidence in the people; the modern political specialist in his closet is Hamiltonian, he thinks the masses are ignorant if not corrupt and must have the oversight of the wise. It is needless to say there are exceptions.

The politician agrees with Lincoln in saying he wants a government of the people, for the people, by the people; the specialist wants a government by the expert for the people. Plato in his republic wanted a government by the philosophers; so do some of our philosophers. From the expert's point of view the ordinary member of the legislature has to learn from the specialist what the state needs in the way of legislation. Often the new member is looked upon as a kindergarten pupil in political science.

Only Experts Capable. The experts are coming to think that only experts can administer the laws after they are made. That a difficulty arises. The expert regards the people as incompetent to select experts. They do not know an expert when they see him, and are liable to make a mistake. It is not safe to trust to an election. The remedy is to form as rapidly as possible a bureaucratic or commission form of government instead of a democratic. How is this to be accomplished? The reply is by creating numerous bureaus, boards, commissions and the like, and making the positions appointive, not elective. Another device is to shorten the ballot as much as the constitution will allow so as to have few elective positions and many appointive offices.

Evils of Commissions. I am not referring to temporary investigative commissions composed of experts, and I am accusing no one of incompetency or of scheming to do away with popular government or of seeking to create positions that they may themselves fill. The worst I have in mind to say is that it is undemocratic and short-sighted to go on multiplying permanent commissions and increasing appointive positions over which the people have no direct control. They will surely with the lapse of time, when the newness of things has worn off, develop into the routine, offensive officialdom of the old European bureaucracies. Says Hughot, "A bureaucracy is sure to think that its duty is to augment official power, official business, or official numbers, rather than to leave free the energies of mankind."

Flood of Legislation. Already, on account of the increase of field men and office men in this almost indistinguishable, confused and confusing mass of state administration and university activities, the people are beginning to wonder what it all means and what the end is to be. There is a growing impression that the bill mills at Madison are working overtime and that in some way the experts are responsible for much of it and that these experts, at least in some cases, are university professors or they are working under the direction of professors. Some two thousand measures were introduced in the last legislative session, six hundred and sixty-five of which became laws. Is this amount of legislation necessary every two years? One begins to hear feeling remarks to the effect that the capital is an annex to the university to be used for experimental and laboratory purposes.

University Not Master. Since the publication of the first letter in this series, some of the most thoughtful and experienced men of my acquaintance, including alumni, have said in all seriousness that the university with its large and constantly increasing body of alumni, its numerous field workers, its grip on the newspapers, its location at the capital, and its political skill is master of the state now and will be henceforth. I can not agree that it is now master of the state, though it seems to have made long strides in that direction. Furthermore, I do not believe that the time will ever come when any free people will be governed for long by one of its subordinate institutions or by any body of men not directly responsible to the people. If the university is found at any time to be exercising undue influence in the government and politics of the state, the people will take it in hand, and I fear not gently.

Bounds Must be Fixed. The university possesses an advantage of enormous importance in that it may truthfully say, "Regents and legislators come and go, but I go on forever." If a given legislature or a given board of regents is strong enough to hold out against the encroachments of the university, all that is necessary is for it to wait until a more propitious moment, when another advance may be made and held, and so on indefinitely.

If I am correct in this statement, and I do not see how anyone can view it differently, there are only two methods of ultimate escape from the tyranny of an institution. One is for all, to fix the limits and bounds for the proper activity of the institution, and the other is for the university to place limitations upon its own activities in accordance with sound political philosophy. That the latter will be done, I have not seen the slightest indication. Every modern university wants power, and it seeks self-aggrandizement.

Yours respectfully,
C. P. CARY,
State Superintendent.

Two short plays, "In His House," by George Altholton, and "Toss Cuttings," by George Bernard Shaw, have been selected for the opening.

It is equally beneficial for the very young and the middle aged, as it is always efficient and free from all harmful ingredients. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine, bearing the name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package.

SUFFERED AGONY WITH ITCHING

And Burning. Sores Like Boils All Over Body. Parts of Flesh Raw. Could Scarcely Bear Clothes On. Nearly Worn Out When He Tried Cuticura Remedies and Was Cured.

"About four years ago I broke out with sores on my arms like boils. After two months they were all over my body, some coming, and some going away. In about six months the boils quit, but my arms, neck and body broke out with an itching, burning rash. It would burn and itch, and come out in pimples like grains of wheat. I was in a terrible condition. I could not sleep or rest. Parts of my flesh were raw, and I could scarcely bear my clothes on. I could not lie in bed in any position and rest. In about a year the sores extended down to my feet. Then I sent for a doctor. They said it was eczema. I got no benefit from all this. I was nearly worn out, and had given up in despair of ever being cured when I was advised by a friend to try Cuticura Remedies. I purchased Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and used exactly as directed. I used the Cuticura Remedies constantly for four months, and nothing else, and was perfectly cured. It is now a year, and I have not had the least bit since. I am ready to praise the Cuticura Remedies at any time." (Signed) L. L. Carr, Erie, Ky., Nov. 10, 1910.

DON'T SAY YOU'RE OLD

You Only Feel Old

Digestive organs are weak—don't assimilate food as they used to.
Other organs act more slowly and less effectively.
Blood is thin and sluggish.
Renewal of strength does not equal the wear and tear of your system.
That's what makes you feel old.
Nothing in the world will tone up and invigorate those weak, back-sliding organs, make rich blood and create strength so quickly as Vinol.
Vinol is not a secret nostrum, simply the medicinal elements of the cod's livers, with the useless nauseating oil eliminated, and tonic iron added. Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not make you stronger, feel younger and give you an added interest in life.

"Every Little Olive Tablet Has a Movement All Its Own"

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver. Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Portsmouth, Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years. Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities.

FRECKLES

By
Gene Stratton-Porter

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

"An—nn" was you looking for me?" quavered the boy, incredulous.
"I hoped I might find you," said the angel. "You see, I didn't do as I was told, and I'm lost. The Bird Woman said I should stay in the carriage until she came back. She's been gone hours. It's a perfect Turkish bath in there, and I'm all lumpy with mosquito bites. Just when I thought that I couldn't bear it another minute, along comes the biggest Papilio Ajax you ever saw. I know how pleased she'd be, so I ran after it. It flew so slow and so low that I thought a dozen times I had it. Then all at once it went out of sight over the trees, and I couldn't find my way back to save me. I think I've walked over an hour. I have been misled to my knees. A thorn raked my arm until it is bleeding, and I'm so tired and warm."

She parted the bushes still further. "Freckles said that her little blue cotton frock clung to her, limp with perspiration. It was torn across the breast. One sleeve hung open from shoulder to elbow. A thorn had raked her arm until it was covered with blood, and the gums and mosquitoes were clustering about it. Her feet were in lace hose and low shoes. Freckles gasped. In the limberlost in low shoes! He caught an armful of moss from his carpet and buried it in the ooze in front of her for a footling.

"Get out here where I can see where you are stopping. Quick, for the life of you!" he ordered.
She smiled on him indulgently.
"Why?" she inquired.
"Did anybody let you come here and not be telling you of the snakes?" urged Freckles.

"We met Mr. McLean on the corduroy, and he did say something about snakes, I believe. The Bird Woman put on leather leggings, and a nice, parballed time she must be having! Worst dose I ever had, and I'd nothing to do but sweat."
"Will you be coming out of there?" growled Freckles.
She laughed as if it were a fine joke. "Maybe I'd be telling you I killed a rattler curled up on that same place you're standing as long as my body and the thickness of my arm you'd be moving where I can see your footing," he urged insistently.

"What a perfectly delightful little brogue you speak," she said. "My father is Irish, and half ought to be enough to entitle me to do that much. Maybe—if I'd be telling you," she laughed, rounding and accenting each word carefully.
"If you was understanding the danger," he continued desperately.
"Oh, I don't think there's much!" she tilted on the morose.
"If you killed one snake here it's probably all there is near, and anyway, the Bird Woman says a rattlesnake is a gentleman and always gives warning before he strikes. I don't hear any rattling. Do you?"

"Would you be knowing it if you did?" asked Freckles almost impatiently.

How the laugh of the young thing rippled!
"Would I be knowing it?" she mocked. "Well, you should see the swamps of Michigan where they dump rattlers out of the marl dredges three and four at a time."
Freckles stood astounded. She did know. She was not in the least afraid. She was depending on a rattlesnake to live up to his share of the contract and rattle in time for her to move. The one characteristic of a Wisloman admires in a woman above all others is courage. Freckles worshipped anew. He changed his tactics.
"I'd be pleased to be receiving you at my front door," he said, "but as you have arrived at the back, will you come in and be seated?"
He waved toward a bench.
The angel came instantly.
"Oh, how lovely and cool!" she cried. As she moved across the room Freckles had hard work to keep from falling on his knees, for they were very weak, and he was hard driven by an impulse to worship.

"Did you arrange this?" she asked.
"Yes," said Freckles simply.
"Some one must come with a big canvas and copy each side of it," she said. "I never saw anything so beautiful. Now I wish I might stay here with you! I will, some day, if you will let me; but now, if you can spare the time, will you help me look for the carriage? If the Bird Woman comes back and finds me gone she will be almost distracted."
"Did you come in on the west road?" asked Freckles.
"I think so," she said. "The man who told the Bird Woman said that was the only place where the wires were down. We drove away in, and it was dreadful—over stumps and logs, and in to the hills. I suppose you know, though. I should have stayed in the carriage, but I was so tired. I never dreamed of getting lost. I suspect I will get scolded half the time during the summer vacations. My father says I learn a lot more than I do at school, and get it straight. I never came within a smell of getting lost before. I thought, at first, it was going to be horrid, but since I've found you, maybe it will be good fun after all."

CHAPTER VIII. THE BIRD WOMAN.

FRECKLES was amazed to hear himself exclaiming. "It was so hot in there. You couldn't be expected to bear it for hours and not be moving. I can take you back around the trail almost to where you were. Then you can get up in the carriage, and I will go find the Bird Woman."
"You'll get killed if you do! When she stays this long, it means that she has a focus on something. You see, when she gets a focus, and lies in the woods and water for hours, and the sun bakes her, and things crawl over her, and then some one comes along and scares her bird away just as she has it coaxed up—why, she kills them. If I melt, you won't go after her. She's probably blistered and half eaten up, but she will never quit until she is satisfied."

"Then it will be safer to be taking care of you," suggested Freckles.
"Now you're talking sense!" said the angel.
"May I try to help your arm?" he asked.
"Have you any idea how it hurts?" she pined.
"A little," said Freckles.
"Well, Mr. McLean said we'd probably find his son here!"
"His son?" cried Freckles.
"That's what he said. And that you would do anything you could for us, and that we could trust you with our lives. But I would have trusted you anyway, if I hadn't known a thing about you. Say, your father is rambling proud of you, isn't he?"
"I don't know," answered the dazed Freckles.

"He's so proud of you he is all swelled up like the lead in Aesop's fables. If you have ever had an arm hurt like this and can do anything, why, for pity sake do it!"
She turned back her sleeve, holding out to Freckles an arm of palest cameo. Freckles unlocked his case and bandaged the ugly, ragged wound. He worked with trembling fingers and a face tense with earnestness.
"Is it feeling any better?" he asked.
"Oh, it's well now!" cried the angel. "It doesn't hurt at all any more."

The velvet touch of her warm arm was tingling in Freckles' finger tips. Dainty faces and fine white stuffs peeped through her torn dress. There were beautiful rings on her fingers. Every article about her was of the finest material and in excellent taste. There was the trembling limberlost guard in his coarse clothing, with his cotton rags and his old pair of swamp water. Freckles was sufficiently accustomed to contrasts to notice them and sufficiently fine to be hurt by them always.

He lifted his eyes to hers with a shadowy pain in them and found them of serene, unconscious purity.
"We must go and find the carriage," said the angel, rising.
Freckles led the way, sharply watching every step. He went as near the log as he felt that he dared and with a little searching found the carriage.
"This is a shame!" said Freckles. "You'll never be coming here again."
"Oh, yes, I shall!" said the angel. "The Bird Woman says that these birds stay over a month in the nest and she would like to make a picture every few days for seven or eight weeks on his knees, for they were very weak, and he was hard driven by an impulse to worship.

"Did you arrange this?" she asked.
"Yes," said Freckles simply.
"Some one must come with a big canvas and copy each side of it," she said. "I never saw anything so beautiful. Now I wish I might stay here with you! I will, some day, if you will let me; but now, if you can spare the time, will you help me look for the carriage? If the Bird Woman comes back and finds me gone she will be almost distracted."
"Did you come in on the west road?" asked Freckles.
"I think so," she said. "The man who told the Bird Woman said that was the only place where the wires were down. We drove away in, and it was dreadful—over stumps and logs, and in to the hills. I suppose you know, though. I should have stayed in the carriage, but I was so tired. I never dreamed of getting lost. I suspect I will get scolded half the time during the summer vacations. My father says I learn a lot more than I do at school, and get it straight. I never came within a smell of getting lost before. I thought, at first, it was going to be horrid, but since I've found you, maybe it will be good fun after all."

Freckles barely escaped crying out for joy.
"Then don't you ever be torturing yourself and your horse to be coming in here again," he said. "I'll show you a way to drive almost to the nest on the east trail, and then you can come around to my room and stay while the Bird Woman works. It's nearly always cool there, and there's comfortable seats and water."
"Oh! Did you have drinking water there?" she cried. "I was never so thirsty or so hungry in my life, but I thought I wouldn't mention it."
"And I had not the wit to be seeing!" wailed Freckles. "I can be getting you a good drink in no time."
He turned to the trail.

"Please wait a minute," called the angel. "What's your name? I want to think about you while you are gone."
Freckles smiled quizzically.
"Freckles?" she guessed, with a peal of laughter. "And mine is—"
"I'm knowing yours," interrupted Freckles.
"I don't believe you do. What is it?" asked the girl.
"You won't be getting angry?"
"Not until I've had the water at least."

It was Freckles' turn to laugh. He whipped off his big, floppy straw hat, stood uncovered before her and said in the sweetest of all the sweet tones of his voice, "There's nothing you could be but the Swamp Angel!"
The girl laughed happily.
Once out of her sight Freckles ran every step of the way to the cabin. Mrs. Duncan saw him a small bucket of water, cool from the well. He carried it in the crook of his right arm and a basket filled with bread and butter, cold meat, apple pie and pickles in his left hand.

"Pickles are kind of cooling," said Mrs. Duncan.
The angel was on her knees reaching for the bucket as he came up.
"He drinking slow," he cautioned her.
Freckles stood blinking in the dazzling glory of her smile.
"Mercy!" she exclaimed. "I think I had best be naming you 'the angel'—my guardian angel."

"Yes," said Freckles. "I look the character every day, but today most emphatically!"
"Angels don't go by looks," laughed the girl. "Your father told us you had been scuffling. But he told us why. I'd gladly wear all your cuts and bruises if I could do anything that would make my father look as puce-cocky as yours did. He strutted about proper. I never saw any one look prouder."

"Did he say he was proud of me?" marveled Freckles.
"He didn't need to," answered the angel. "He was radiating pride from every pore."
The angel spread the lunch on the carriage seat. The daintiest parts she could select she carefully put back into the basket. The rest she ate. As he watched her with fascinated eyes Freckles told her of his birds, flowers and books.

Suddenly the angel cried, "There comes the Bird Woman!"
She was staggering under a load of cameras and paraphernalia. Freckles took all he could carry and helped her into the carriage.
Soon they were out of the swamp. Then he showed them how to reach the chicken tree, from the outside, indicated a cooler place for the horse and told them how the next time they came the angel could find his room while she waited.

"Were you forgetting Little Chickens' picture?" Freckles asked the Bird Woman.
"Why do you call the baby vulture 'Little Chickens'?" she asked.
"Twins, Duncan, began it," said Freckles. "You see, through the fierce cold of winter the birds of the swamp were almost starving. It is mighty lonely here, and they were all the company I was having. I got to carrying scraps and grain down to them. Duncan was that generous he was giving me of his wheat and corn from his chickens' feed, and he called the birds no swamp chickens. Then when these big black fellows came, Mr. McLean said they were our nearest kind to some in the old world that they called 'Pharaoh's Chickens,' and he called mine 'Freckles' Chickens."
"Good enough!" cried the Bird Woman. "You must shoot something for them occasionally, and I'll bring more food when I come. If you will help me keep them until I get my series, I'll give you a copy of each sketch I make, mounted in a book."
"I'll be doing my best," promised the boy.

Heed the boy, and from the depths he meant it.
"I wonder if that other egg is going to hatch?" mused the Bird Woman. "I'm afraid not. It should have been out today. Isn't it a beauty? I never saw either an egg or the young before. They are rare this far north."
"So Mr. McLean said," answered Freckles.
The Bird Woman gave him her hand at parting, and Freckles joyfully realized that there was going to be another person for him to love. Freckles couldn't remember, after they had driven away, that they had even noticed his missing hand, and for the first time in his life he had forgotten it.

When the Bird Woman and the angel were well on the home road the angel told of the little corner of paradise into which she had strayed and of her new name.
"Did you know Mr. McLean had a son?" asked the angel. "Isn't the little recent he has and the way he twists a sentence too dear? And isn't it too old fashioned and funny to hear him call his father mister?"
"It sounds too good to be true," said the Bird Woman, answering the last question first. "I am so tired with these present day young men that patronizingly call their fathers 'dad,' 'governor,' 'old man' and 'old chap' that the boy's attitude of respect and deference struck me as being as fine as silk. There must be something rare about that young man."

But she did not find it necessary to tell the angel that for several years she had known the man who so proudly proclaimed himself Freckles' father to be a bachelor and a Scotchman. The Bird Woman had a fine way of attending strictly to her own business.

Freckles turned back to the trail, but stopped at every well wider and looked at the pink satin of the petals. She was not of his world, and better than any other he knew it; but she might be his angel, and he was dreaming of night but blind, silent worship. He flushed the happiest day of his life, and that night he went back to the swamp as if drawn by a magnet. That Wesner would try for his ravens he knew. That he would be abetted by Black Jack was almost certain, but fear had died the happy heart of Freckles. He had kept his trust. He had won the respect of the boss. Nobody could ever who from his heart the flood of holy adoration that had welled up with the coming of his angel.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

HOW BOSTON VILLAGE REGULATED WAGES.

By A. W. MACY.

The good people of Boston village were much dissatisfied with what they considered the excessive wages demanded by workmen, so the general court decided to make an example of one Edward Palmer, a carpenter. He had been employed to erect stocks for the punishment of offenders. Having completed the machine, he sent in his bill, amounting to about $8.00. As he doubtless furnished the timber, and probably put in at least two days' labor, this charge does not seem to us unreasonable. But the court decided it was exorbitant, fined him five pounds (about $22.00), and sentenced him to spend one hour in the machine he had made. The punishment seems out of all proportion to the offense, but the Puritans had a curious way of looking at these things.

Charles Durham, Livingston, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thru on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley's Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Indger Drug Co.

What kind of paper?

For a Sick Child.
For a child or infant sick with brain fever or inflammation of any sort, where quietness is very important: take two ordinary bed sheets, wrap them well with cotton or fine rags and place one on each side of the patient. Tie the arms and legs firmly, but not too tight to stop circulation, to the boards. This will keep the restless child in a perfectly quiet position and help greatly in the cure of the same.

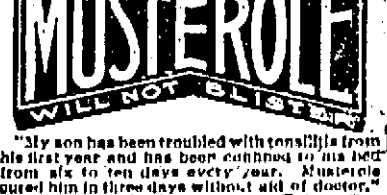

Men and Biscuits.
Go into a house where biscuits are eaten every day and it is a sign that the men folks run things. Men like hot biscuits, but they are troublesome to make, and women invented light bread.—Atchison Globe.

Monarch's Odd Menu.
Peter the Great loved, and most frequently ordered for his own special enjoyment, a soup with four cabbage leaves in it, gruel, pig, with sour cream for sauce; cold roast meat, with pickled cucumbers for salad; lemons and lampreys, salt meat, ham and hamburger cheese. He began dinner with cabbage water, and closed the banquet with goblets of burgundy.
